

Oliver's House holds a party

Ice cream, train rides, animals, sweets and more sweets characterised last Friday, when the staff of Oliver's House held a fun day for the 107 children in their care.

The fun day, at the Party Farm in Rynfield, was organised by event co-ordinators for Oliver's House, Lyn Smit and Sue Fouche. Oliver's House is a day care centre for children living in informal settlements. The youngsters were "adopted" by the centre two and a half years ago, from a day care centre known as "Noemthandazo".

Food, education, fun and games are provided daily for the children, a lot of whom are HIV/Aids orphans.

The staff of Oliver's House had their hands full with the 107 children in attendance at the party.
